19 days

The 19th anniversary of the signing of the 1987 Constitution is a day of reflection for the Filipino people. It is a day to look back at the journey we have made and to look forward to the challenges we still face.

Reflections

As we mark this significant milestone, we must not forget the struggles and sacrifices of our forefathers. They fought for a more just and democratic society, and their legacy is a guiding light for us today. We must continue to uphold the principles of the Constitution, ensuring that the rights and freedoms of all Filipinos are protected and promoted.

The past 19 years have been a period of both progress and setbacks. We have achieved many milestones, but we still have a long way to go. We must remain committed to the pursuit of justice, equality, and peace for all.

Let us reflect on the lessons learned from our history and use them to build a better future. We must work together, as one people, to overcome our challenges and achieve our dreams.

In the face of adversity, we must stand firm in our principles and values. We must not allow ourselves to be divided by our differences, but rather, we must embrace our diversity and work towards a common goal.

Let us take a moment to pause and reflect on the progress we have made. Let us also take a moment to acknowledge the challenges we still face. Let us commit ourselves to the pursuit of a more just and democratic society for all.

As we move forward, let us remember the words of our forefathers: "We are one people, one nation, one destiny." Let us work together to build a better future for all.

Belgian firm eyes 15 energy projects in PH

• No bid call: Christmas party today

Total investments seen hitting $1B to generate 500 MW

A Belgian firm is eyeing 15 energy projects in the Philippines, with a total investment of $1 billion to generate 500 MW of power. The firm, which is based in Brussels, is currently in the early stages of negotiations with the Philippine government. The projects are spread across various regions of the country, including Luzon, Visayas, and Mindanao. The firm's CEO, who is visiting Manila today, expressed his confidence in the Philippines' potential for renewable energy. He noted that the country's abundant natural resources, such as wind, solar, and geothermal, offer a significant opportunity for sustainable power generation. The firm is particularly interested in exploring partnerships with local companies to develop these resources. The Philippine government has shown a strong commitment to expanding its energy infrastructure, and the firm believes that a public-private partnership (PPP) model would be the most effective way to move forward. A potential $1.2-billion gas pipeline project is also being discussed, which could significantly boost the country's energy capacity. The firm's visit is part of a larger effort to attract foreign investment to the Philippines' energy sector.

Treasury bucks prepayment of foreign debts

By Patricia T. Baker
 The Philippine Treasury Department has rejected a proposal to prepay foreign debts, a move that would have allowed the government to take advantage of low interest rates and a strong peso. Treasury Secretary Carlos Dominga Jr. said the government is not in a position to prepay its foreign debts because it is still recovering from the effects of the global financial crisis. He added that the government is focused on improving its fiscal position and reducing its debt-to-GDP ratio. The proposal was made by a group of economists and business leaders who argued that prepaying the debts would save the government millions of dollars in interest payments. They also claimed that it would improve the country's credit rating and make it easier to attract foreign investment. However, the Treasury Department is concerned that prepaying the debts would strain the government's budget and could lead to a loss of confidence in the government's financial management.

The Treasury Department's decision is seen as a setback for those who had hoped for a more aggressive approach to debt management. However, it also reflects the government's cautious approach to financial matters in the current economic climate. Dominga said that the government will continue to work on improving its fiscal position and reducing its debt, but that prepayment is not the best solution at this time. He also noted that the government is committed to maintaining its credit rating and ensuring that it can meet its financial obligations.

Batangas-Manila LNG project too big for private firms

PHILIPPINE GOVERNMENT MAY OFFER A $1.2-BILLION GAS PIPELINE PROJECT TO PRIVATE FIRMS UNDER A PUBLIC-PRIVATE PARTNERSHIP (PPP) ARRANGEMENT, ACCORDING TO A REPORT BY THE DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY (DOE).

The project, which would connect the Batangas and Manila areas, is considered too large for private firms to handle on their own, the DOE report says. The project would involve the construction of a 100-kilometer gas pipeline and the installation of LNG storage facilities.

The DOE is currently in the process of preparing a feasibility study for the project. If the study is successful, the government may offer the project to private firms under a PPP arrangement. The project is expected to be completed by 2015.

Christmas party rivalry

As the holiday season approaches, many companies are holding Christmas parties for their employees. These parties are often a time for employees to relax and socialize with their colleagues. However, some companies are also using these parties as an opportunity to reward top performers.

Philippine Cinema in the 90s, according to the Manunuri

By Henry A. Lopez
Manila

Since the late 1980s, the Philippine film industry has been in a state of decline. The number of films produced each year has dropped significantly, and the quality of the films has also suffered. This is due to a variety of factors, including the rise of television and the internet, and the lack of government support for the industry.

One of the main reasons for the decline of the Philippine film industry is the rise of television. In the 1990s, television became the primary source of entertainment for many Filipinos. This led to a decrease in the number of people who went to the movies, which in turn led to a decrease in the number of films produced.

Another reason for the decline of the Philippine film industry is the lack of government support. The government has not provided enough funding for the industry, and it has not been able to protect the industry from foreign competition.

Despite these challenges, the Philippine film industry has managed to survive. There are still many talented filmmakers working in the industry, and there are still many people who love to watch Philippine films. However, the industry needs to find ways to overcome these challenges if it is to thrive in the future.

One way to overcome these challenges is to improve the quality of the films. Filmmakers should focus on creating high-quality, original films that are worthy of being shown in theaters. They should also try to attract more international attention to their work.

Another way to overcome these challenges is to increase government support. The government should provide more funding for the industry, and it should also take steps to protect the industry from foreign competition.

Finally, the Philippine film industry needs to find ways to reach a wider audience. This can be done by marketing the films more effectively, and by showing the films in more theaters. It can also be done by creating new distribution channels, such as video-on-demand services.

There are many challenges facing the Philippine film industry, but there are also many opportunities. If the industry can overcome these challenges, it has the potential to become a major force in the Philippine entertainment industry.

The Philippine film industry has a long and rich history, and it has the potential to continue to thrive in the future. It is up to the filmmakers and the government to make that a reality.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life of sedentary, middle-aged men. The study was a randomized controlled trial. The intervention group (n = 20) participated in a 12-week training program, while the control group (n = 20) remained sedentary. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 minutes. The sessions included aerobic exercise, strength training, and flexibility exercises. The control group remained sedentary throughout the study. The primary outcome was the change in physical fitness, measured by the 6-minute walk test (6MWT) and the 10-meter walk test (10MWT). Secondary outcomes included changes in health-related quality of life, measured by the SF-36 questionnaire. The results showed that the intervention group had significantly greater improvements in physical fitness and health-related quality of life compared to the control group. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve physical fitness and health-related quality of life in sedentary, middle-aged men.

There are two main reasons why the results of the study are important. First, the study shows that the use of a single, standardized questionnaire is not sufficient to assess the impact of a disaster on a community. Davao break

Author: Dr. Liza A. Liza

LAST MONTH, during the summer break, my husband and I together with our two kids headed to Davao for a family vacation.

During the vacation, we visited the Davao City Museum, which is a must-visit for anyone who wants to know more about the history of the region.

The museum is a small building with a white facade and a red roof. It is located in the heart of the city, near the Davao City Hall.
